

UPES STUDENT LAW REVIEW

CALL FOR BLOGS
"INAUGURAL EDITION"

ABOUT US

UPES Student Law Review is an official platform for academicians, students, and law professionals across the globe to voice out their opinions in the form of "Blog Articles" in multidisciplinary fields of law of national as well as international significance with an objective of promoting academic research and fostering debates on various contemporary legal issues. The blog is our endeavor to further provide an opportunity to all budding academicians to exchange ideas and share their knowledge with our readership.

SUBMISSION DEADLINE

- Submissions are accepted on a rolling basis.

ENTRY FEES

- No publication fees will be charged at any stage. An author can submit any desired number of entries.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

- Word Limit: 1500-2500 words (exclusive of footnotes)
- Co-Authorship: Maximum of 2 authors
- Plagiarism: Not exceeding 15% of the entire submission.
- Method of Referencing: Footnotes (Any uniform method of citation – The Bluebook 20th edn., OSCOLA 4th edn., JILI)
- File Format: .doc and .docx only
- Font Style: Times New Roman
- Font Size: 12 – Main Text, 10 – Footnotes
- Text Alignment: Justified
- Line Spacing: 1.5 – Main Text, 1.0 – Footnotes
- Mode of Submission: Google Forms

PLEASE NOTE:

- The manuscript shall not contain any personal credentials or any form of identifiable marks.
- The author(s) shall refrain from using page borders or any other unnecessary formatting features.
- The submissions shall be original and unpublished and should not be in consideration on any other forum. Authors should strictly adhere to the policies of Academic Integrity and refrain from any act of plagiarism or copyright infringement. In case of any dispute, UPES Student Law Review or the University shall not be held liable for the professional misconduct of the author(s).

WHERE TO SUBMIT?

- Authors may fill the following Google Form to submit their manuscript:

<https://forms.gle/kfEvp4G36eiG1kJ98>

EDITORIAL POLICY

- I. The UPES SLR Blog follows an elaborate double-blind review procedure. The Editorial Board strives hard to ensure that all authors are kept posted regarding the latest status of their manuscripts as it progresses through each phase of the review.
- II. The Editorial Board retains absolute discretion over the acceptance/rejection of all manuscripts.
- III. After the preliminary review, a tentatively approved manuscript might be sent to the author(s) for rectifications concerning structure/formatting or content. If the author(s) fails to incorporate the suggestions of the Editorial Board and re-send their manuscript in the specified time duration; then the Editorial Board is vested with the authority to disregard the submission.
- IV. If the manuscript is sanctioned for publication, the Copyright over the submission shall vest with UPES Student Law Review. Nevertheless, the moral rights over the submission will be safely endowed with the original author(s).
- V. Post the Google Form submission, the authors are expected to refrain from submitting the same manuscript on any external forum until they receive a final confirmation regarding the approval/dismissal of their submissions.

VI. Once a blog is published on the website of UPES Student Law Review's Blog, the author(s) must not submit it elsewhere as it will be considered as a violation of the Editorial Policy and will result in the submission being unpublished from the Blog.

VII. If a manuscript is rejected for publication on the UPES Student Law Review Blog, all willing authors can request a personalised 'Review Report' from the Editorial Board, and our editors will be more than glad to identify any flaws or blemishes in the submission and incorporate expert suggestions to enhance and embellish the quality of the submission so that it secures greater chances of publication in futurity.

VIII. All authors must take note of the fact that UPES Student Law Review securely stores the personal data provided by the authors during the Google Form submission in order to facilitate correspondence with the authors in the future (or if be necessary). UPES Student Law Review has a zero-tolerance policy against 'negligent data handling' and no third-parties are ever granted access to the confidential information provided by the authors.

IX. The authors are advised to refrain from submitting manuscripts including remarks targeted to provoke communal hatred, racism, gender inequality, political backlash, or any other objectionable or inappropriate remark that might tend to hurt the sentiments of any particular individual, community, sect, or religion. If such remarks are identified in a submission, the Editorial Board holds the right to disregard the submission.

X. The Editorial Board is empowered to amend minor errors in the manuscript including (but not limited to) grammar, punctuation, formatting, structure, or the title. The authors will be duly notified of all such moderations during the review process.

FOR ANY QUERIES OR CLARIFICATIONS

- Anshit Minocha - Associate Digital Editor - (+91 9958005386)
- Atishya Ghosh - Sr. Content Editor | Junior Content Editorship (Head)
- (+91 9723334599)
- E-Mail - upesstudentlawreview@ddn.upes.ac.in

